As the founding CEO of the Chicago Alliance to End Homelessness and the Partnership to End Homelessness, I helped design and implement the Chicago Planning Council for 12 years. I have chaired the Planning Council and served on the executive committee, and have staffed the Chicago Alliance board of directors, SPC executive committee, and various constituency groups. As the Collaborative Applicant (and before that existed) I oversaw the NOFA process and the submission of the annual NOFA application to HUD. I am now the Chief Operating Officer of the Primo Center for Women and Children, which provides interim housing, permanent supportive housing, and evidence-based supportive services for women and children. I am also a member of the Charter Implementation Committee, and I am very interested in helping to make the Planning Council a success under the new charter.
